Hans Nettelblad AIA LEED AP

bnim PRINCIPAL

Hans Nettelblad brings over three decades of experience in the architectural profession with in-depth involvement across the entire range of project design, from concept through construction. Hans has provided unparalleled leadership and direction on complex, large-scale projects at BNIM, advocating for sustainable and human-purposed design solutions. His work aims to improve performance and provide healthier living, working, and learning environments for users.

His experience serving as Project Architect for the phased renovation of the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art, along with leading several projects in the rebuilding of Greensburg, KS, including the LEED Platinum Kiowa County School facility, led to him being named The American Institute of Architects' Kansas City Chapter "Architect of the Year" in 2008. Hans has served as Project Architect and Project Manager on numerous projects at BNIM including the Pacific Center Campus Development in San Diego, and most recently as Project Manager for the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts REACH Expansion in Washington, D.C. Currently, he is serving as Senior Project Manager for the renovation of Moffitt Library at UC Berkeley.
