Fiona Bhuyan

bnim DESIGNER

Fiona takes an interdisciplinary approach to ensuring all the elements of design result in a cohesive manner. She positions her work as a form of art and stays in close touch with latest technology and tools in order to establish strong timelessness. Fiona received her Master of Architecture from Kansas State University. During her time in school and at BNIM, she has performed rigorous analysis on the understanding of concept to transform design ideas into a successful reality, while focusing on the relationships and impacts her work has on the public realm.

Her experience at BNIM includes a variety of significant projects, including The REACH Expansion at the John F. Kennedy Center, a 72,000 square foot addition of studio, rehearsal, performance, and learning spaces, and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Glenn Korff School of Music.
