Jeremy Knoll AIA, LEED FELLOW, SEED, ENV-SP

bnim ASSOCIATE PRINCIPAL

Jeremy is an experienced leader at BNIM with a deep passion for green building, historic preservation, and social equity. He has served as the primary sustainability and LEED consultant on dozens of projects worldwide, and he serves as a volunteer leader nationally with Design Corps and locally with the U.S. Green Building Council. At BNIM, Jeremy has served in a broad range of roles, from Project Manager to Building Performance Advisor, to LEED coordinator, and his expertise in sustainable design and building performance strategies are sought out by project teams across the firm.

As part of BNIM's Sustainability Group, Jeremy is a key contributor to BNIM's Sustainability Action Plan and annual sustainability report, Subject To Change. Jeremy serves as a volunteer leader nationally, regionally, and locally for the USGBC, Executive Board member of Climate Action KC, and Executive Board Member of DesignCorps, the world leader of the Public Interest Design movement.

Jeremy has held a key role on projects including the LEED Platinum certified collaborative office hub, Makers Quarter Block D in San Diego, CA; Bancroft School Redevelopment in Kansas City, MO; and the renovation of the Downtown YMCA Kirk Family Community Center in Kansas City, MO. Jeremy has also contributed to two new facilities at Johnson County Community College; Seaton Hall Renovation and Expansion at Kansas State University; and an expansion to the School of Music at the University of Missouri in Columbia.
