Josh Harrold  AIA NCARB
bnim ASSOCIATE

Josh is an Associate at BNIM with more than a decade of experience, creating a body of work that has received regional and national awards. Josh is focused on the intersections of architecture, landscape, interiors, objects, and technologies, with a mission to improve the relationship between people’s needs, desires, and capacities in the built environment. Josh is an ideas based architect who operates between the duality of equaled and bound excitement and focus, idealism and pragmatism, physical and metaphysical. He believes design is essential to quality of life and rooted in thorough analysis, rigorous investigation, and meticulous execution.

Most recently, Josh applied this approach to the design of the Master Plan for the Springfield Art Museum, the Fine Art + Design Building and the Career and Technical Education Building at Johnson County Community College. He has also worked on the firm’s headquarters, Building Positive, a prototype for the interplay of four of the most stringent sustainable design standards.
